FOR THE 'VARSITY RACE, WITH THE FRESHMAN CONTEST OPEN.

Saratoga, N. Y., June 28.—This has been an un-eventful day with the college oursmen. The three colleges whose crows have of late been tearing big des in the surface of the take have all obtaine accurate lines on one another's skill and speed, and the arrival of Wisconsin, the last of the four is argued that no crew would undertake the long e lourney half-way across the continent un as a ceach, and for six months has been on the material given him to handle. rew was selected from an original squad of over fifty men. It was warming to the heart of a rowing enthusiast to have the opportunity of seeing so many crews pulling away same time. The lake was dotted all over with shells, and a comparison of style and strokes was exceptionally easy. Cornell's three crews wen a course of sprouts such as they have not had since they shook the dust of Ithaca from off their feet. Manager White chartered the Alice, the swiftest boat on the lake, which is to be used by the referee on the day of the race. Cour had a chance to pick flaws, and was able to keep within halling distance all the time. While the Varsity came in for a good share of his attention, the freshmen had far more coaching than their seniors. Well, that's just what we came to Saratoga for. My boys possess remarkable staying powers, and, barring accident, will, in my opinion, win. Of course, I know well that Charles Courtney has brought the Cornells up to great form, and that they did up Yale and Harvard at New-London hast week, but the Cornell men, all jolky good fellows, must not be overconfident, for you well know overconfidence has many a time caused defeat. The Varsity race will be no dead casy thing for anybody, but give the Radgers good weather and good water and you'll see the hottest three-mile race ever pulled over a regata course. I understand that both the Columbia control is the face. I'm glad of it, for that will make the race more exciting. If there is anything that the public don't like in a regatta it is a procession.

AMONG THE OARSMEN.

As the date of the Long Island regatta is only two weeks off, the oarsmen, especially those of the Brookivn and Long Island bout clubs, are training hard. The entries are more numerous than they have been for years, and the regatta should be a fine one.

The postponed regatta of the Crescent Athletic Club, of Brooklyn, will be held in the Narrows, if the weather will permit. The Flushing Boat Club, which won the junior

W. A. BRADY SAYS CORBETT AND M'COY ARE NOT

A sensational story was printed yesterday to the effect that an arrangement had been made whereby McCoy and Corbett would fight before a club at Buffalo for a purse of $12,000, W. A. Brady, the manager for Corbett, when seen, said that, as far as Corbett was concerned, there was not a word of truth in the story. He said Corbett would be in the city in a day or two, and that possibly some arrangement might be made then.

THE ZOOLOGICAL PARK.

WORK ON THE BUILDINGS TO BEGIN IMMEDI-ATELY ON THE APPROVAL OF THE PLANS.

In the last four months the unsettled question of the city's power to issue improvement bonds has compelled the Zuological Society to postpone the building operations in the Zoological Park which it semed inexpedient to proceed with the erection of costly buildings so long as there remained a possi bility that it might be beyond the legal power of the city to provide the water supply, sewerage and walks absolutely necessary to make them habitable ment respecting public improvements convinced the Executive Committee of the society that the city taking. The Park Board, and particularly Park Commissioner Moebus of the Borough of the Bronx, manifested such friendliness toward the Zoological Fark that the society decided to proceed at once with some of the minor improvements of the long list it undertakes to provide at its own expense. Orders have been given to the director and architects to submit forthwith to the Board of Parks the plans and specifications for the winter house for birds, the great flying cage, the bear dens, woif dens, fox dens, eagles' aviary, shelter house for elk and pheasants' aviary, and as soon as they are approved to proceed with all possible speed with their construction. The working plans for all the above "installations"-as zoological garden people call them-are work will begin within twenty-four hours of the receipt by the society of a notification that the plans are approved. All the structures mentioned are strictly in line with the preliminary plans that have aiready been informally laid before the mem-bers of the Board and Mr. De Wolfe, the landscape architect. Not one of the plans involves the cutting of a tree or the blasting of any exposed rock.

Until the city lays some of the water pipes which it is to supply the society will have hard work to provide the water that will be necessary from the very hesiming in the mixing of concrete, great quantities of which will be used in the floors of dens and in all foundation. The entire supply will probably have to be hauled in barrels from West Farms, which will involve considerable expense and an actual loss of money which later on will be needed in other building operations.

On June 21 the Zoological Society presented to the Mayor a formal application to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for the issue of the $12,000 of bonds authorized by the Legislature for the water supply, walks, sewerage and other surface improvements to be made by the city in the Zoological Park. This fund is necessary to provide general indexembnia such as at a personny to the Republicans of the VIIth District renominated Congressman Eddy by acclamation.

COMMENTS ON CURRENT FUENTS

MR. ROOSEVELT'S MULTILATERALNESS. From The Cleveland Plain Dealer,

Theodore Roosavelt is multilateral. He is a diamond with numerous facets. He can do various important things and do them all well. He is given to changing his sphere of effort but he adapts himself so quickly to the conditions of the new sphere that he seems for all practical purposes to have a matural bent therefor. He is never a square peg in a round hole."

HEEDING WASHINGTON'S ADVICE. From The Boston Journal.

There are two hundred and ninety-five ships now in the Navy of the United States. And mark it well—there are coing to be more before there are fewer. The American people have learned at last the lesson which Washington sought to teach, that an adequate war fleet in American hands is a potent instrument for peace, security and justice.

AFTER THE FALL OF SANTIAGO. From The Providence Journal.

From The Providence Journal. What Spain will do after the fall of Santiago is evidently becoming a pressing problem for solution at the court of Madrid. Marshal Campos is probably the one individual in whom the Queen Regent has supreme confidence, and he is also, as far as the outside world knows, the only man in the Kingdom who would dare to make peace with the United States. This old soldier has no illusions regarding the situation in Cuba or in any of the other colonies of his country, and he realizes perfectly well that the future of the perinsula requires the abandonment of all useless dependencies. FIVE GREAT POWERS OF THE WORLD.

From The Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

A significant fact has dawned upon the world's vision in these days when the world is becoming a seer and prophet. It is that whereas there are five great Powers in the world there are but four races. Mr. James Bryce notes it in his article in the July "Atlantic," his five great Powers being Great Britain, the United States, Germany, Russia and France. GALLANTRY UNDER FIRE.

From The Chicago Inter Ocean.

As the campaign progresses the Americans will learn the ways of the enemy, and will fight to better advantage. The men who behaved so gallantly under fire in the first engagement with the Spaniards are not to be criticised for rashness when they simply did their duty under circumstances common to all spirited campaigns. They came unexpectedly upon a hostile force, and instead of retiring in confusion stood their ground, and in the end from the attacking column from the field. This was a good record.

RUSSIA, ENGLAND AND AMERICA. From The Omaha Ree.

There is no doubt that the traditional friendly feeling of Russia toward the United States continues, but it is easy to infer from the observations of the Russian Ambassador that it might be impaired by closer relations between this country and England than now exist. The danger in this direction, however, is not imminent.

JENES IS THE FAVORITE.

HE WILL PROBABLY BE THE DEMOCRATIC NOW INEE FOR GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Altoona, Penn., June 28.-George A. Jenks, of Brookville, will be the nominee for Governor at tomorrow's State Democratic Convention, unless there is a decided change of sentiment among the delegates before the time for nomination is reached. His managers claim he will have 312 of the 436 delegates, and that under no conditions will Judge James Gay Gordon, of Philadelphia, have more than 124. George W. Bacon, of York, has the call on the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor, and Calvin M. Rower, of Centre, will be one of the nom-inees for Superior Court Judge. The make-up of the rest of the ticket is in doubt, and depends an-tirely on what conditions the Jenks people can make with the friends of aspirants for minor places.

make with the friends of aspirants for minot places.

A half-dozen party leaders are working on a platform, and it is doubtful if an agreement will be reached before the Resolutions Committee gets together to-morrow afternoon. The Bryan silver people control the convention, and if they demand a sweeping indorsement of the Chicago platform, this will be done although there is a disposition on all sides to make the campaign strictly on State issues, with an emphatic indorsement of President McKinley's war policy.

Ex-Congressman William H. Sowden, of Allentown, is making an active canvass for Lieutenant-Governor. He can have the nomination for Congress at large on the asking, but he declares he does not want it.

A. V. Dively, of Altoona, is still in the field for second place with little prospect of success.

That Colonel Guiffrey, the National committeeman, controls the situation, is admitted by the managers of both candidates. The Jenks people have been claiming the last twenty-four acurs that Guiffrey is pledged to the support of their favorite, if their claims can be relied upon then there is no question of Jenks's nomination. Gordon's friends are just as hopeful as ever, and if he is defeated he will go down with flying colors.
